New Screen Magazine.

No. 58. One Reel

SO many people who like to brag about the natural wonders of this country know so little about it that they think the Grand Canyon is all that there is here to see. The Screen Magazine shows the marvelous grandeurs of California's Red Rock Canyon, a gorge which in magnificence, if not in size, is as wonderful as anything in the world. Alon Bement, who has been telling men many startling things about themselves by reading the characteristics of their hands, tells the audience of the Screen Magazine the difference between the Constructive, the Executive and the Philosophical hand in a very interesting series of studies. A new adventure of Cinema Luke and a new set of Laughographs bring this number of the Magazine to a happy end.
